Two Or More People With A Common Purpose Who Interact With & Exert Mutual Influence On Each Other

I started this article 1,700 miles south of where you would normally read this right after Election Day. The morning temperature was 48 degrees. Where in America was I? Ft. Lauderdale, where the crop of automobiles are on the pricey side and drivers have cell phones welded to their ears. The visit was fruitful as I got to help out my aunt and uncle for 10 days. On the stay sober part, I find every time I attend A.A. meetings while I'm away, I learn a few things that I may not have at my regular meetings, and I thought I'd share them with you.

Reflection 1: If you were in my place at those meetings far from home, you would fit right in.

You might think that being in a place that is fond of expensive cars and homes would be intimidating. On account of an observation like this, you might make a opinion about those people, then believe your conclusion was correct, and missed out on something that you would profit from. That would be a bad move.

Walk into an A.A. meeting, regardless of your preconceived idea of what is inside the doors, and you might as well be walking into a meeting down the road from your house. Most have found and are working on a solution; others are newcomers. Most all are struggling with something, and have victories in other things. Topics are no different than at the particular table you just sat at. Some arrive in a very fancy cars, some in worn out sandals and others in tattered shorts. We all walked the same path, in one way or another, and when the gavel drops, our sobriety and helping another alcoholic is all that matters.

I've heard too many stories of people actually picking up while out of town (I did that twice) and more near-misses. If you need to travel, GO to a meeting. It is now one of the highlights of any trip I make, whether it is hours or days from home. In the process I have overcome the irrational fear I had in taking a trip out of town because of my past. I've always found a meeting, although I'd recommend calling the local Intergroup when you get to your destination for current meeting locations in that area.

Reflection 2: What I miss most when attending meetings away from home.

If you attend meetings for a short time in a far from home location, it hits you after a couple of days that you don't know a soul there. You are lucky if you talk to the same person twice. Every meeting seems different, just because the people and the buildings are new and unfamiliar — all basically aliens except for our membership in A.A. Sound like your first week of meetings?

This really hit me on a two-day sidebar trip to northern Florida. I had thought (always dangerous), "What is missing here?" I was wearing out the seek button on the 8 hour return trip and a generalized reply then came: I'm showing up for meetings down here, which is different than showing up as a member of a group back home. It's hard to be a member of a group of people you have never met. I also realized that it is also the same as the difference between groups that have meetings and groups that are groups.

What are the differences? How would I know if I've found a real A.A. group, and not a place that has meetings? And maybe the better question, does it really matter? Dictionary definitions address the physical nature of groups, but generally leave out the spiritual aspect, unless it has something to do with the common thing all members of a group share. Our literature addresses this issue directly:

*"Some A.A. members hold A.A. meetings that different from the common understanding of a group. These members simply gather at a set time and place for a meeting, perhaps for convenience or other special situations. The main difference between meetings and groups is that A.A. groups generally continue to exist outside the prescribed meeting hours, ready to provide Twelfth Step help when needed."
(AA Groups pamphlet pages 10-11)*

Ah Ha! Go to all the meetings you want, but make sure that you belong to at least one group, and not just living on a diet of meetings alone.

I know from what I've read that in the early days of A.A., alcoholics met weekly in a regular, scheduled meetings, sometimes just one per city per week. This was primarily to introduce A.A. to interested non-alcoholics and those like us who needed help and were out of options.

Those early members didn't just get together once a week and then said "see you next Friday." Between meetings they met at each other's houses. In our present day we may have substituted more groups that started up and have meetings for those informal regular visits at other members' homes. This is in perfect alignment with our Traditions, only two are required to form a group (Tradition Two), and have the authority to do so.

Groups have a core of regular members, usually enough to do all the basic jobs a group has and to allow rotation of jobs. It is where we begin to learn about responsibility and where we get another potent reason for attending our home group's meeting.

A.A. groups have regular business meetings, and trusted servants sincerely carry out their position. Here are some of the jobs to be done: GREETER (most likely the most important job); Speaker Seeker; Treasurer; Secretary; Coffee Maker; Setup & Cleanup; Chairman; Table Moderator; Literature and Grapevine; Central Committee or GSO Representative.

While the chief function of a group is to carry the message to the still suffering alcoholic (Tradition Five), groups also have functions other than meetings. Some go out together for coffee after the meeting. They get to know what is going on in each other's lives; it goes deeper than what is discussed at tables.

There are even mini (micro) groups within a larger (macro) group, which shows me there is more reasons to continue the trudge (walk with extreme purpose). I noticed this at a memorial service for a friend's wife a short time ago. It seemed like the greater "A.A. community" in that city got together to support him during this time. Scanning the room, I saw A.A. people that regularly attend one specific group, another few sitting together that I usually see at another group, and so on. After the service everyone was talking to everyone else. Out mutual support for each other continues to amaze me.

They are very conscious of,

*"We absolutely insist on enjoying life. So we think cheerfulness and laughter make for usefulness"
(Alcoholics Anonymous page 132)*

The group finds a way to have some type of party, eating meeting or workshop more often than their annual anniversary party. Make sure you read the sentence before the "enjoying life" one, which states,

"If newcomers could see no joy or fun from our existence, they wouldn't want it." (same)

Why does it matter? If you don't know what a group is, how could you join one? My experience says the winners all are an vital part of their group and are active in that group. Most of them are also active in something else service related outside of an A.A. group, as well as the after meeting outings on occasion. Become a winner! Regardless of how important or unimportant you think you are to that group, you have a standing equal to every other member there, and are needed.

As other long-timers have said, "Fear will keep you sober in the beginning." So what happens when the gut-wrenching fear starts to dissipate? If the joy or fun hasn't shown up yet, or is at least a thought from observing others that it could someday happen to them too, they might drink again.

Last week someone at a group I usually attend invited me out for food after the meeting. I made a decision (said yes), and joined them. Something inside said "GO". It was worth every minute I spent in their presence. I had initially planned on just going home after the meeting. Key point — I was invited to join them.

Twenty-five years ago someone invited me out for ice cream after a meeting (I was 4-6 months sober), and like a lost sheep I mumbled ok. That simple decision and following action opened me up to a world that I was oblivious to; it was the best thing that happened in my walk to achieve sobriety.

I was one of three or four 'twenty-something aged people' who started hanging out with a group of about 15 A.A. members that were enjoying sober life and whose age range was 40-60 years old. I wanted what they had! Presently I think I've travelled completely around that age circle. At that gathering last week I was at a table full of "twenty-somethings", and I'm the over 40 person!

Spending time with other A.A. members outside of meetings really is a combination of our Fellowship and Twelfth Step work. I found this is addressed in two quotes.

*"Practically every A.A. member declares that no satisfaction has been deeper and no joy greater than in a Twelfth Step job well done."
(Twelve Steps and Twelve Traditions page 110)*

I think we all agree that if we are on one of those jobs (and the person goes to a meeting), or take a first A.A. meeting person aside after the meeting and talk to them, and eventually the person “gets it,” there aren't many things better in life that we as recovering/recovered alcoholics can experience. This is because we know how deep we were in the pit. The second way we get that satisfaction is watching someone grow. Three months, six months, a year, and so on, to see a new person's life emerge from the abyss is truly encouraging!

“...coffee and cake after the meetings {remember this was written in 1952}, where so many skeptical, suspicious newcomers have found confidence and comfort in the laughter and talk. This is Twelfth Step work in the very best sense of the word.” (same)

We all know beginners tables can become a drag at times, problems, problems, problems! We also know it must be open to discuss problems of almost any sort relating to our common problem, because if we can't talk about them at a table, we will drink again. Then the meeting ends, sometimes the solution is not even brought up, because people find it easier to relate to what Waldo Newbie is going through at that moment. In most cases that exactly what Waldo Newbie needed to know at that moment in time to stay away from a drink.

Since a meeting in current times rarely has “coffee and cake after the meeting” at the same place (except most monthly anniversary meetings) as quoted, where or how do we become real earth-residents again? During the meeting immediately after the meeting usually have something to do with what was discussed at the meeting. What better place to provide comfort and laughter, and convince new people that we have found a solution and build some trust than in a safe non-meeting environment? It's a way for A.A. members to demonstrate they have real lives outside the rooms, and really can enjoy life without a drink. The restaurant/coffee shop gatherings is where I acquired confidence and trust in that group of people, that they weren't just providing lip service to some program found in a book, and realized they were real people, just like me. Since I'm not much different than you, the same may happen in your life too!

How do you join up with one of these groups? Doesn't A.A. say that you are a member of an A.A. if you say so? That's the simple part, and that is where it starts. After that, you probably have to do something for or with that group. Please to re-read the headline. Notice the words “interact” and “influence” Both are verbs, which show action.

After that heave in probably the most important aspect of groups, and any good professional or amateur sports team reflects this: Time together determines the possibility of victory. It doesn't have to be a sports team. Other group examples are the Twelve Apostles, the Three Stooges, the cast from SNL, Bugs Bunny and Daffy Duck, and so on. Sports teams start with training camp and move on to daily practice, strategy meetings, meals together, travelling together for away games and celebrating victories together. Time in each others' presence is vital to building a team or a group and the relationships that develop because of it.

Going back to the verb idea, would you consider a person a hockey team member if he came to the game and planted himself on the bench, immovable, in his street clothes, with no injuries? No, not a chance.

You also may have noticed a feeling deep down inside — one that says “there has to be more than this.” It's not overpowering, but one of those low level disturbances that pops into conscious thought now and then. If you go early, stay late, or both, and still have that feeling, you are ready for deeper water in the Fellowship aspect of our program.

If you are a member of one of those groups which decide a meeting isn't enough, those that go out for coffee, pizza, or a simple snowball fight after the regular meeting, INVITE SOMEONE NOT PART OF THAT GROUP TO JOIN YOU. Most people will not invite themselves out with a gaggle of others that are deciding sometimes on the way where they will be going.

There is an old saying in the business world — grow or die. If your group continues to grow, it will continue to thrive. Growth does not necessarily mean it gets larger in numbers; it does mean there is a consistent stream of new members to the group. It might be one person a week, or it could be one person every 6 months. That is how groups stay fresh.

IF YOU GET INVITED TO GO OUT AFTER A MEETING, SAY YES. Go and explore. Get to know some people a little better than you know them now.

Clancy I made a statement in one of his leads about people who come to A.A. and what needs to be done to help them: “We accept each other as we are on that day, at that time. People come in angry, confused, sometimes drunk, full of fear, and then are told they have to adopt a new way of life, completely foreign to them, if they want to not drink again. It is one of the keys of how this program works - we accept each other just the way we are, on a daily basis.”

I can't think of a better way to put Clancy's definition into practice and break that fear of “a new way of life” — the program (our struggles and victories) at our tables, and the Fellowship before or after the meeting. Not every day or necessarily every meeting, but on a regular, repeating basis that fits your program of recovery. I leaned that, in the group I hung out with — I was accepted by them just the way I was, defects and all, even before I could really accept who I was.

Spread your wings beyond their normal range and fly like an eagle! You might just be riding the 2011 rocket to the fourth dimension (Alcoholics Anonymous, page 25)!

“Many A.A. members report that their circle of A.A. friends has widened greatly as the result of coffee and conversation before and after meetings. Most groups depend upon their members to prepare for each meeting, serve the refreshments, and clean up afterward. You often hear A.A. members say that they first felt ‘like members’ when they began making coffee, helping with the chairs, or cleaning the coffeepot. Some newcomers find that such activity relieves their shyness and makes it easier to meet and talk to other members.”

(AA Groups pamphlet page 14)

Stay Sober in the new year — get involved in some service work outside your group if you aren't, or it might be time to take a break if you have been doing too much (and find someone to take your place).

This newsletter is looking for six to twelve people that could write one article a year. Share your experience; it doesn't have to be long or perfect. Write an article! It might make the difference in someone's life!

Details to be worked out at our next committee meeting. As always, I'd like to thank all of the groups that have donated to the Archives. WHAT A.A. MEANS TO ME

A smile and friendly handclasp

Instead of frowns and stares.

A feeling of belonging,

An answer to our prayers.

Days of joy and sweetness

Instead of misery.

Communion with my Higher Power,

That's what A.A. means to me.

Love and true devotion

In my wife and children's eyes.

A home that rings with laughter

Instead of groans and sighs.

To have the Promises come true,

To stand up straight and free.

To have the benefits and grace

Of sweet Sobriety.

Believing that a life well-lived

Will shine eternally.

A life lived fully, day by day,

That's what A.A. means to me.

~~Gene O.
