Anonymity Is the Spiritual Foundation

We Failed Idealists Need Attention

I came from a family riddled with alcoholic drinkers. Many of them had the problem as bad as I did. I recall the first month, or so, after I got sober, still hanging out with them at our favorite watering hole, drinking ginger ale. I would slip out every night to go to the AA meeting at 8:30 and return two hours later without telling anyone where I was going.

I didn't want anybody to know I was checking out the AA program. At the time, I didn't want to face ridicule, and wasn't sure it was going to work for me. If it didn't work, I wouldn't have put up with their mocking. You might say that I was protecting my anonymity at the time and didn't even know it.

After thirty days of that, I didn't care who knew about it because I believed I had found the answer. And I had! Soon after that, I wanted to shout it from the rooftops and try to sober up everyone around me.

You probably know how that turned out. As I dragged each of my five brothers to AA meetings, it seemed that each learned just enough to rationalize exactly why he was not an alcoholic. And they ridiculed me any way.

Later, two died of alcohol-related symptoms. And a third brother committed suicide. That was among the experiences that gave me hard-earned lessons about the respect for the principle of anonymity. Of the rest of my immediate family of ten, only one sister saw something in me that she liked and got sober in the program. She hasn't had a drink in more than 48 years.

In AA meetings, we are exposed to discussions as newer members complain about someone breaking their anonymity, or the ones, like my former self, want to shout it from the rooftops. That will always be the case in AA, as it's one of the symptoms of alcoholism.

We are failed idealists who need attention. But as we get more and more experience, we learn the true value of the spirit of anonymity. We can always come up with some noble reason for tooting our own horn, and we can dress it up in the altruistic motive of sacrificing one's own anonymity to save someone's life. In the long run, that sometimes destroys the chance of being a good example, and often turns out doing just the opposite — which I have personally witnessed.

Tradition Twelve talks of anonymity as, "the spiritual foundation of all our Traditions, ever reminding us to place principles before personalities."

There is a difference between the spirit of the law and the letter of the law. We, who have been diligent with the program, have been highly influenced by the spirit of what the founders of AA learned and introduced us to in the form of the 12 Steps and the 12 Tradition. They all come in the form of unselfishness of the spirit. I have yet to find one prayer or principle in the two books we use as reference guides in AA that are of a material nature or a selfish motive. This tells me that the things I do, as the result of practicing the principles of the program, should be done unselfishly and without fanfare. So long as I need the attention that I always sought when looking for a "photo opportunity," I'm following only the letter of the law, so to speak.

When I came to understand the spirit of anonymity, I was able to rein in my ego and my selfish motives. I try to be a good role model and do it quietly. It seems to work better that way.

Understanding Spiritual Anonymity

Definition and Importance

Spiritual anonymity refers to the practice of prioritizing principles over personal recognition. It emphasizes humility and selflessness, allowing individuals to focus on their spiritual growth and the well-being of others rather than seeking personal accolades. This concept is foundational in various spiritual traditions, including Alcoholics Anonymous (A.A.), where it serves as a reminder to place collective welfare above individual desires.

Anonymity in Spiritual Practices

Personal Level: Anonymity protects individuals from being identified as members of certain groups, which can be crucial for newcomers seeking help. It allows them to share their experiences without fear of judgment.

Public Level: Maintaining anonymity in public forums helps ensure that members do not exploit their affiliation for personal gain. This fosters equality among members and reinforces the idea that recovery is a shared journey.

Benefits of Practicing Anonymity

Encourages Selflessness: By performing acts of kindness anonymously, individuals learn to give without expecting recognition or reward. This practice cultivates genuine humility and strengthens community bonds.

Promotes Spiritual Growth: Engaging in anonymous acts can lead to a deeper spiritual awakening, as individuals learn to focus on their actions rather than their image.

Fosters Trust: Anonymity builds trust within communities, allowing members to share openly without fear of their personal stories being disclosed.

In summary, spiritual anonymity is a vital practice that encourages humility, selflessness, and community trust, ultimately leading to personal and collective growth.

How does spiritual anonymity influence personal growth and selflessness?

Spiritual anonymity encourages individuals to focus on selfless actions without seeking recognition, which can lead to personal growth by fostering humility and reducing ego-driven behaviors. By practicing anonymity, people can cultivate a deeper connection with their inner selves and others, promoting genuine acts of kindness and service.

"The only problem we ever really have is separation from God."

hours in a day.

No more. No less. That's all I have to work with. To do my best to keep my thinking in check. To pray often. To trust that God cares about me and wants me to succeed. To hold on and not give up. To do for others what I can. To give God my weaknesses and triggers. To grow humility and a deeper gratitude. To give God all the credit. To have peace at the end of every day.

END OF BUSINESS DAY 4:00 PM of the month previous

We reviewed our fears thoroughly. We put them on paper, even though we had no resentment in connection with them. We asked ourselves why we had them. Wasn't it because self-reliance failed us? Self-reliance was good as far as it went, but it didn't go far enough. — Page 68 Alcoholics Anonymous

Above everything, we alcoholics must be rid of this selfishness. We must, or it kill us! God makes that possible. And there often seems no way of entirely getting rid of self without His aid. Many of us had moral and philosophical convictions galore, but we could not live up to them even though we would have liked to.

Lack of power, that was our dilemma. We had to find a power by which we could live, and it had to be a Power greater than ourselves. Obviously. But where and how were we to find this Power? Well, that's exactly what this book is about. Its main object is to enable you to find a Power greater than yourself which will solve your problem.

We Agnostics Pg-45

What usually happens? The show doesn't come off very well. He begins to think life doesn't treat him right. He decides to exert himself more. He becomes, on the next occasion, still more demanding or gracious, as the case may be. Still the play does not suit him. Admitting he may be somewhat at fault, he is sure that other people are more to blame. He becomes angry, indignant, self-pitying.

HELP WANTED

Ready to get involved in A.A.?

A.A. members work together to help the alcoholic who still suffers. Helping each other is a key to staying sober. There are many opportunities to participate in a variety of ways. The best place to start getting involved is through an A.A. group. Participating in a group helps ensure that when a person reaches out for help, A.A. will be available.

Self-Supporting through our own Contribution's...

7th tradition self-support
 contribution

Bill W. wrote of Intergroup Offices, "Though not costly, these agencies are absolutely essential to our continued expansion—to our survival as a Fellowship. Their costs are a collective obligation that rests squarely upon all of us. Our support of services actually amounts to a recognition on our part that AA. must everywhere function in full strength—and that, under our Tradition of self-support, we are all going to foot the bill"
